Historical Note:

In May 1945, the Civilian Production Administration granted Southeast Missouri State Teachers College permission to build a men's dormitory (Myers Hall) and a student center (Memorial Hall). Ray Dilschneider bided successfully, and after several alterations to lower the costs of construction, the college had to sell $400,000.00 worth of revenue bonds to match state appropriations. Money earned through the dormitory and student center was designated to pay off the bonds. Final payment of the bonds was originally due August 1967; the college completed paying them off more than nine years ahead of schedule, in January 1958.¹
