The Aesthetics of Movements: Athletic Dancers and Artistic Athletes

Wednesday, Sept. 16, 2009
at 12:30 p.m.

in Kent Library's Sadie's Place

Dance and sports are two movement forms that appeal to people as participants and spectators for a variety of reasons: kinesthetic, competitive, expressive, artistic, cathartic, and aesthetic. The presentation will involve a discussion of some similarities, differences, and singular qualities between dance and sport from a philosophy of arts perspective, with special reference to Aristotle's Poetics, Tolstoy's *What is Art? and traditional Navajo attitudes.

The presentation is open to all and refreshments will be served.

Library Hosts: Julie Banks, Sheila Isaacs, Martha McBride, and Angela Primm
